1. In February 1951, all males of the 1900 through 1905 classes living in the city and county of Lodz (Q 52/O 93), including Poles and even those ethnic Germans who had not opted for Poland, were registered for the draft at the Lodz recruiting office. A member of the 1902 class was questioned about his military background at the registration, which did not include a medical examination. He was given a blue interim registration certificate (Tymczasowa Legitimacja Registracyjna), about the size of a postcard. This certificate bore identification data, but not the registrant's photograph.
2. On 11 March 1951, the sale of alcoholic beverages was prohibited in Leobschuetz (P 51/J 12) on the grounds of the draftees' induction.
